

Within a standard span of seven years program, the University trains applicants in theoretical, practical and clinical spheres. Applicants upon graduation are awarded the degree of M.D. in Medicine and would be able to practice medicine independently.